Blackburn's report

Blackburn's report as follows, viz: - University of North Dakota June 2^d. 1885. To the Honorable, the Board of Regents. University of North Dakota. Gentlemen: I respectfully present to you a general report upon the following subjects: 1 The work of Instruction during the year. The scope and faithful performance of it may be seen from the enclosed reports of the instructors. These reports and the proposed catalogue, recently submitted to the Board, will show the classification of the students, the courses of study recommended, and the general condition of educational affairs in the University. 2. The number of Students. There have been enrolled 79 students of whom 22 were young Ladies. So Many have been obligated to engage in labors, or in teaching, that the number now in attendance is 24, of whom eight (8) are boarding the University building. The ratio of decreases has been least in the higher classes. 3 Furniture needed. In addition to the special wants mentioned in the reports of instructors, at least two class-rooms should be furnished with Teacher's desks, and with armed settees, or seats. I recommend that these by [sic] supplied. 4. Nominations for the two professorships which the Faculty recommended to be instituted. Having been informed, unofficially, that the Board has appointed a Committee on
